

PEACE CONGRESS CONCLUDES WORK

Final Session Is Addressed by Congressman Hobson, Pleading for Greater Armament.

PREPARE IN PEACE FOR WAR

Says Sufficient Forces to Protect All Possessions Should Always Be in Readiness.

GREENSBORO, N. C., October 15.—The North Carolina Peace Congress, which has been in session here for four days, adjourned today. At the final session Congressman Hobson and the Rev. William G. Hubbard discussed the question of a larger navy, Hubbard contending that war is a relic of the past and there is now no need of an army or navy except to quell riots. Hobson contended that the army is possibly large enough, but we need a greater navy to keep down militarism and unjust demands by foreign powers.

Hobson speaks. Reminding his hearers that he had the privilege of placing in President Roosevelt's hands the published report of the last meeting of the North Carolina Peace Congress, Captain Hobson declared that he was entirely in accord with the President, when on that occasion he said that "peace societies merely jeopardize the national welfare, and are profoundly hostile to American national life, if they obstruct the government in providing ample military and naval power to meet conditions in the actual world of to-day."

Plunging then into the subject of his address, Captain Hobson said: "In ascertaining the relation of armament and arbitration to States' rights it is necessary to go back to the Constitution. The preamble of the Constitution sets forth that one of the prime objects for which that instrument was ordained was to 'provide for the common defense,' and again section 4 of article I provides that the 'United States shall protect every State in the Union against invasion. The Federal government therefore is in duty bound to maintain such an armed force as will secure to each State the proper protection, and an armed force equal to the duty imposed must be unquestionably superior when engaged in our possessions, or in the waters adjacent thereto."

"This means supremacy for defense, not for aggression. It does not mean state having more ships or armed men than a nation or nations that are possible antagonists. It means having more power than such nations have, capable of being applied against them when invading or approaching our territory or possessions."

Address of Mrs. Henderson. Mrs. Lillian George Henderson, formerly president-general of the Confederacy, spoke under the title "The Daughters of the Confederacy and Peace." She said that she addressed the heads of the association in all the States asking for expressions on the subject, and without exception they declared in favor of "peace and civilization." She quoted the present president-general as having written to her:

"Represent our general association in its approval of the endeavor to bring to the world that arbitration in all national differences, which will prompt a peaceful solution of all such troubles, and thus save mankind to the highest plans of civilization."

Mrs. Henderson's eloquent speech was filled with earnest appeals to men for peace for women's sake. "I was born amidst war," she said, "and I want no more of it." And she added: "Teach us on this subject that we may teach our sons; that we may instill their very beings with this fact that no honor which war can confer equal that of being able to find a way to honorable peace among all nations. Educate us on the subject that we may educate our children. For, despite the opinion of that sage of a Western university, the great majority of the world that we may educate our children. For, despite the opinion of that sage of a Western university, the great majority of the world that we may educate our children. For, despite the opinion of that sage of a Western university, the great majority of the world that we may educate our children."

"I heard a great man say once that the way to secure universal peace was to have a universal law requiring that every man who votes for war should serve throughout that war as a private soldier."

"We ordinary people are so tired of wars and rumors of wars that we beg you to create a condition under which even the yellowest journals cannot bring sleepless nights to us with the thought that our loved ones will feel called on to go to war. And if we mean all this to us in America, where our soldiers are volunteers, how infinitely more terrible it must be to the mothers in those countries where every man is compelled to serve in the army."

"We daughters of the Confederacy want no more war forever."

Mrs. Henderson said in conclusion, "A Georgia daughter expresses it for us thus: 'And we, the Daughters of the Confederacy, who bound the wounds of friend and foe in the struggle, who visited and comforted the sick and the dying, whose blood watered our scorched fields; we, who took up the

WOMAN'S NIGHTMARE

No woman can be happy without children; it is her nature to love them as much so as it is the beautiful and pure. The ordeal through which the expectant mother must pass is so full of dread that the thought fills her with apprehension. Mrs. Morecock is in good health, and gets about the house with aid, assistance, and her hearing and eyesight are both good.

GAVE LAND TO CARNIVAL

St. Peter's Managers Create New Interest in View of Big Prize.

Quite a tremor of pleasant excitement was experienced by every one of the vast throng at St. Peter's merry carnival last night, when it was announced that a valuable lot of land donated to the fair, would be opened to all bidders. No one felt disposed to lose an opportunity to realize so much for so little, and Mrs. P. H. Donahoe and Mrs. W. P. Leoman, who are in charge, are doing a thriving business. The lot is 35x140 feet, located one block from the car line, and is now valued at several hundred dollars. The sale of tickets for this lot is now on and will continue for several days.

The Ladies' Macabees' drill team was present, with full ranks, and executed many difficult tactical problems with an ease and skill that won great applause. Their drill is very efficient and reflects much credit on their drill master, Major C. G. Bossieux.

A musical program will be rendered to-night by Messrs. Walter A. Watkins, J. J. McBain, L. Cutchins and J. W. White.

The activity in the contest for the handsome cane, in which all the tables engaged, was renewed last night with great vigor, and much interest is centered in the outcome. The contestants are Messrs. Gus Bernier, Charlie Traferi, A. F. Sauerwald and Sam Stern.

FALSE CHARGES AGAINST SOUTH

Illinois Man Said to Have Spread Report That Children Are Worked Night and Day.

REFERRED TO COTTON MILLS

Carolina Secretary of Agriculture Is Indignant, and Will Contradict Report in North.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.] RALEIGH, N. C., October 15.—Secretary of Agriculture J. B. Grimes is indignant over charges relative to the working of child labor in North Carolina and the South, and made before a Christian congregation in Freeport, Ill. He has called the statements as utterly false, and will bring home the charges to their originator.

False Assertions. The charges were contained in a paper read before a sociological study department of the First Baptist Church of Freeport, Ill., and offered to the Freeport Journal for publication. The paragraph follows:

"The cotton industry of the South is based on child labor. Many young children work in Southern cotton mills from 6 P. M. to 6 A. M. without a single minute for food or rest. Ten per cent of the children who go to work before twelve years of age contract consumption, and it is estimated that the average wage of 8,000 children working in the cotton mills of North Carolina is but 25 cents per day."

The editor of the Freeport Journal declined to publish the address, and wrote the North Carolina Secretary of State for the facts.

A good start has been made in the work of making the awards for exhibits in the North Carolina State Fair. The first prize for best county exhibit went to Wake, with Alamance second and Haywood third. The fruit exhibit by Haywood county was conceded to be far superior to any other North Carolina exhibit, but fruit only counts, under the rules, 15 per cent, while agriculture counts 60 per cent. The award for the best general farm exhibit went to J. W. Perry, of Chatham county. The award for the best mountain farm exhibit went to B. P. Howell, of Haywood county.

Descendants from Signers. The North Carolina Branch of Descendants of the Signers of the Declaration of Independence was organized here to-day, to affiliate with the national organization. James Stevenson Hooper, of Wilmington, was elected State president, and Mrs. Helen De Bernere Wills, of Raleigh, and Mrs. Amelia J. Hellechampe, of High Point, were elected, respectively, vice-president and secretary-treasurer. It was decided to hold a meeting next May in Greensboro.

CHARGES CONSPIRACY. Claims Damages for Effort to Oust Him From Premises.

A case of more than general interest in real estate circles will come to trial this morning in the Law and Equity Court in the suit of Roy Brown against H. A. McCurdy, J. M. Taylor and S. J. Wingfield. Brown has on August 23, 1907, he was in possession as tenant a house No. 818 North Twenty-seventh street that McCurdy and Taylor in an effort to oust him from the premises "bought out and conspired with one S. J. Wingfield, to whom he owed certain sums, and induced Wingfield to get a judgment and attachment on his personal and household belongings for about $150, for which conspiracy he asks damages in the sum of $2,000.

The defendants have filed an answer to the declaration, in which they state that they had had reasonable ground to believe in the existence of the facts essential to the prosecution of attachment, and deny any conspiracy or other unlawful act.
